MakeHaven Blog Review:

<https://www.makehaven.org/blog/sewing-success>

What went well with this project? Why?

- Students really enjoyed the course and learned practical skills.
- Students enjoyed getting a certificate/ celebration at end.
- Instructor was able to communicate with students to reach goals (make projects)
- Students used MakeHaven facilities effectively
- Scope of projects seemed appropriate and relevant to the students.
- The class hours seemed to work very well for participants. They didn't seem to have much availability any earlier than 9:30 or later than noon
- Materials provided were adequate
- Class size was optimal. 4-7 participants in class allowed for social distancing

What didn't go so well? What was the cause?

- Language barrier was significant obstacle for logistics communication. Translation services did not work out as hoped.
- Students required a lot of one-on-one time which was difficult to do when everyone was there.
- There was some confusion about who got bus passes and who would ride over together. Could have managed that info more clearly.
- A couple students dropped out during the course.
- We did not anticipate school vacations during the course, this meant several classes were bumped back.
- Might be difficult for students to use other aspects of MakeHaven with language barrier.
- New participants were added weeks into the program and the Instructor had to spend a significant amount of time catching them up.
- Participants didn't have materials before first class and weren't able to work along with Instructor during the first few sessions.
- Not enough sewing machines. There were times when participants had to wait to use a sewing machine because all were occupied.

What should we do differently in the future?

- The online portion was changed to in person in later sessions to assist with communication. Consider what the right mix is.
- Perhaps schedule more one on one time.
- MakeHaven can work on more Spanish language translation of documents/ signage.
- Allow more time/hours for class preparation/development of curriculum. Possibly some materials for participants to take home as reference.
- All MakeHaven onboarding complete during the first week.
- Incorporate time with textile facilitators during the program so participants are better acquainted and more comfortable working at MakeHaven independently following the program.
- Materials were great. However, the rulers made some measurements difficult to gauge once we got into more pattern making. Would recommend a transparent ruler with up to 16th of an inch measurement.

NOTES from Meeting:

- Ceresa available Mondays/Fridays during summer, Tues/Thurs during school year
- Group lessons, each student has individual time slot each week
 - Consider an assistant/intern to be able to do this
- Cater lessons to interests, what they want to make
- Zoom translate options (per Ceresa)
- 6 weeks of lessons may be more reasonable, could use last 2 weeks
- In person class in general but have recorded lessons available for people who miss or for review
- Necchis were more popular, and they had more features that were missing from (zigzag, button functions)
- How to get them into the space? Perhaps a project/homework to get them into the space other times. Also had concerns about coming into the space without Ceresa, cultural? Look to break those concerns early
- Facilitators can cancel their hours that week and come to class to get to know students, rotating through to encourage introductions
- +10 hours of prep for Ceresa, parking pass
- If majority are Spanish speakers, it is helpful to have some students with more English to help (variety of levels)
